I've read both volumes of "After God is Dibia" and sincerely feel they are a must read for anyone serious about research in African Religion. In the books, he explains the West African Igbo's concept of God, Chi and man and how they are intertwined. He touches on topics such as "the breath of life", which the ancient Egyptians, the Kahunas of ancient Mexico and present day mystics use to charge themselves with spiritual energy in order to get whatever they need. These are but a minuscule ...
