The Indian government has been working on cleaning it up through the Ganges Action Plan, begun in 2015. However, hazardous sewage, garbage, and industrial pollution continue to harm its fragile ecosystem. The Ganges Action plan was pitched as a $3 billion (200 billion rupee) project running through 2020, but it's perpetually behind. The goal was to have the river largely cleaned up this year, but large amounts of untreated sewage still flow into the river—more than 1.3 billion gallons (4 ...
