Matthew The Gospel Of Identity

Matthew writes his Gospel to help his readers define their new identity as followers of Jesus the Messiah. Michael Card unpacks how Matthew's emphasis on fulfillment confirms their Jewish connection to the Torah, while his focus on the kingdom helps them understand their new identities in Christ. Matthew presents this process of redefinition as an exercise of the imagination, in which Jesus reshapes who we are in light of who he is.

Matthew: The Gospel of Identity - InterVarsity Press

Matthew Card does a good job of transporting our imagination into the world of the text so that we encounter Jesus in a fresh way. Well-researched but aimed at the heart. I thought that Card's focus on the question of identity, "Who are we?" answered by "Who is Jesus?", really helped bring out the voice of Matthew and the questions he is addressing to his first century Jewish-Christian listeners. I highly recommend it.

Matthew: The Gospel of Identity by Michael Card

• Matthew's Gospel is about identity, about discarding the old, incomplete identities that enslave us and receiving a radical new identity. • Matthew is primarily about the identity of Jesus and the often-painful process of subsuming our identities in his (see Gal 3:28).

Matthew: The Gospel of Identity - Michael Card Music

When I read Matthew carefully, three things stand out: Matthew emphasizes the fulfillment of Scripture, Jesus's radical teaching, and the way that Jesus's identity shapes our own. New fulfillment One of the most unique features of Matthew's Gospel is the emphasis on the fulfillment of the Old Testament. Ten times throughout his Gospel, Matthew tells us explicitly that something happened in ...
