Thankfully, The School is Driving Me Crazy demonstrates how your real friends always have your back, as they come to his rescue and save him from getting expelled. my favorite thing about this novel is Sam's characteristics. The fact that he brings FOUR garbage bags of leaves to school for his homework and then OF COURSE they explode all over the classroom is beautifully classic. Also, it's a perfect way to read how things are not always fair and bad things happen to good people until bad ...

My school gave me six sections, three different grades/preps this year (HS English) so I find myself overwhelmed almost every day. And I've been teaching 14+ years. Somethings get easier as the years go by, somethings stay the same. Meetings are usually complete wastes of time, admin is full of horse-shit, and there's never enough time to ...

Ok so I'm a sophomore in high school now and where I live school starts really early at 7:15 and my bus comes at 6:20. I'm really tired throughout the day and I have trouble going to bed early. My problem isn't really with the academic side of things, my school is an A school. I have AP classes and all A's to. I find most of my classes except for a few classes extremely slowly paced.

Let me tell you, this driving school is the one deserves my respect. The instructors here are more likely to be treated as friends. I could share my stories and life experience with them, and they told me theirs too, they are very good listeners. I truly think this is the best services you could find among the region. They will ask you about which part you think should be reinforced and just ...
