The limestone relief works in the tomb of Seti I and those in the temple he built at Abydos are the finest in all of Egyptian history and among the greatest works of art in the world. It is curious that art should reach this height under this pharaoh, a military man, and then decline in the bigger-is-better attitude of his son Rameses II.

The Discovery of the Tomb of Pharaoh Seti I

Privately, Belzoni viewed Seti I's tomb as perhaps the finest tomb of all the pharaohs. Disguised passageways lead to hidden rooms, while long corridors were used to distract and confuse potential tomb robbers. Despite the amazing tomb, Seti's sarcophagus and mummy were found to be missing. A further 70 years would go by before archaeologists discovered Seti I's final resting place.
